RACE REPORT

By Ferdi van Teeffelen

Martin Sports Car Club's annual Mini-Prix was hosted this year at Sebring's infield, a magnificent venue. Surrounded by gloriously loud NASA racers, the energy was palpable - perpetual motion on the outside track, fast laps and DNFs and breakdowns on the inside "track." The event was held over two days, the first a practice day and the second being the actual competition. Saturday's practice saw around 25 drivers trying out the lengthy course, surging through an optional slalom and a looped switchback section. Saturday started out beautiful and moderate, tarmac awaiting trial by tire. The weather turned toward the soggy side as the afternoon went on, so unfortunately practice was cut somewhat short. Sunday's competition brought 40 eager drivers spread over 18 classes.

For such an alluring event, the attendance was markedly lower compared to November's Fall Mini-Prix. No matter for the drivers on course, for whom it meant more runs, more seat time. Nobody complains about seat time. This did make for an interesting amount of single-driver classes, nearly a quarter of the bunch pushing only themselves to the limit.

Super Stock, which at this point may as well be renamed "Corvette only, s.v.p.," featured two drivers wielding Bowling Green monsters. Don Hosler navigated the course in a quick and neat fashion, managing the Corvette's surprising twinge of slight understeer in tight corners whilst keeping the power down nicely on exit. In a 180-degree departure from their last Mini-Prix engagement, he edged out Aaron Stogsdill by 2.669 seconds to take home the class trophy.

B Street was smoothly championed by Don Cross, pruning time to beat himself. C Street was a two-car class of the Scoobie blue '13 BRZ, Dan Sterling posting a 1.308 second lead over Jose Cruz despite having two OFFs. E Street was a single-driver class with Fred Zimmerman posting two OFFs and finding seven cones. Troy Watters shaved a very respectable 3.6 seconds between his first and last run, solely competing for G Street victory. Also in H Street by himself was Jon Wright, finding the course on his third run after two OFFs, likewise managing a neat time improvement of 12 seconds.

Street Touring FWD was a hotbed of drivers furiously crawling their way through understeer galore. The nimble "FWD Miata" piloted by Andres Rodriguez took first place with a 4.357 second lead over second-place Ben Turner. In third place is Mikael Edstrom with five clean runs in a 500bhp bit of Italian menace, outpacing Ferdi van Teeffelen by 1.110 seconds. Coming 2.259 seconds later was Victoria Edstrom, co-driving the bit of Italian menace.

Street Touring Xtreme, like C Street, was a duo of Scoobie blues. Hammering his way to victory, Chris posted his fastest clean time on the third run, with a 1.617 second margin over David Lineberry. Street Touring Ultra was won by Ryan Speaks, coming 1.911 seconds before Jesse Olsen. Street Modified, a three driver Subaru-dominated class, levied its trophy to Ben Levy. He ended with a scant 0.368 MOV over Lauren DiRuzzo. Mickey Gauldin posted his fastest lap on the first run to win Super Street Modified. His last run was unfortunately an OFF but seemed to be a viable TTD. Instead, this honor fell upon Franchot Palma running in Street Modified FWD, mostly on three wheels. He bested Mickey by only a quarter of a second, taking only two runs through three OFFs to do so.

Half of the Street Modified Street Tire 2 “podium” was claimed by the Giddens father-and-son team, Leland placing first over John with a scant 0.335 margin. Following closely in third by 0.678 seconds was Kevin Spence in a German car with a German-sized engine. Buzz Thompson, in a borrowed German car with an American-sized engine, placed fourth. Notable is that Travis Turner placed eighth in his own German car with an American-sized engine, .607 seconds between them. Not a slam on Turner’s driving, but rather a remark on a successful transition by a fellow light FWD pusher to a heavier RWD platform. Karel Schneider brought a roadster as usual, but with a different type of blower on it. He placed eighth behind Travis Schneider, only .218 seconds between them.

With the exception of Novice, the remaining three classes were single-driver. George Bonafede ran usually fast and furious in Street Mod Street Tire 4. D Street Prepared featured Justin Cady sliding a Quattro thing around as if it were only RWD. As D Prepared’s sole competitor, and running one of two lightweight, supercharged, mid-engined plastic zippers on track, Robert Belvoir came within a hair’s width of TTD, .068 MOV to the yellow tricycle that liked to belch little blue tufts of oil smoke.

Novice featured only two entrants, the victorious Mike Lambert proudly raising a trophy for the glory of newfound cone-chase carnage. He established a 3.8-second MOV over the only other competitor, Roy Watters. Co-driving a Datsun with his son and 2014 MSCC Spring Mini-Prix GS champion, Mr. Watters managed to nudge only a single cone, trimming the course in orderly fashion to post his fastest time on the final run.

Few hang-ups were had. The first run featured a Civic which stalled, refused to start, and was pushed off-course to an early end of the day. Fueling issues plagued a Miata a while later. The emergency course clearance management team appreciates that the owners took the time to purchase light cars.

Returning to regularly scheduled asphalt, we await with gentle anticipation the turns and trials of May’s race day.
